Mission

Springfield's Earth Day Music and Sustainability Festival is our yearly music festival held on the Saturday closest to Earth Day. It's a one-day, ticketed, plastic-free, music and sustainability festival that raises funds to help support our local environmental organizations.

Service Area

Southern and southwest Missouri
Every year, we feature live musical acts from prominent local and regional bands, with top-notch production and stages. In addition to music, we invite our sponsors and other local businesses who want to make an impact on the environmental movement to set up booths where helpful information is shared and sustainably made goods are sold.

Funding

Funding comes from angel benefactors, grants, sponsorships, donations (both monetary and in kind), proceeds from ticket sales, merchandise sales and event booth rentals.

12-month Goals

To provide necessary funding for group projects benefiting our local environment. In doing so we strive to provide a family friendly event in the tradition of our nation's celebration of Earth Day by offering top notch musical acts from the national, regional and local music scene.

How People and Businesses Can Help

The best way for individuals to help is to buy a ticket and come to the event. If they cannot come we encourage purchasing a ticket in kind which we in turn donate. We also take monetary donations. Sponsorships are open to both individuals and businesses. We have many different levels of sponsorship, from $250 to our top tier presenting sponsor.

We do a lot of advertising and social media posting prior to the event. Sharing these on your pages is a great way to help us succeed in getting our message out and promoting the festival.
